

Visitation/Zeyara

The Widow starts by pouring water on the cactus, then she sits back complaining about the burdens left on her, she sits cross legged and rocks her body back and forth; her son sits behind her he is not involved in the action, the is a third party, the hosh guardian?the torabi?

3afrit?Cemetery dweller?

Trick by a presumed cemetery dweller (he is comfortable enough with the area and abuses the credulity of the young visitor, he appears and disappears without being noticed which supposes a great familiarity with the hosh). The resident child only by covering his entire face and had in black pretends to be a Afrit)

The shaken child discusses Afarit with his friend, the latter convinces him of their existence by giving personal anecdotes

The boy seems truly scared
